Personal legal services

Protecting and advising older or vulnerable people - Support when you need it most

Whatever your personal circumstances, we can provide legal advice for you and your family, tailored to your individual needs.

Personal legal practitioners with your needs at heart

Caring for a loved one can present many worries, not least the emotions associated with facing such circumstances. It can be difficult to know where to start. But if you are able to put the practical arrangements into place, this will give you the peace of mind so that you can focus on the important task of caring.

At Stone King we have many years of experience in helping families and individuals, both when immediate support is required and in planning for the future.

We can guide you every step of the way.

We can help you to put in place lasting powers of attorney, so that you decide who can make decisions on your behalf when you are at your most vulnerable and unable to do so yourself.

Going the extra mile

If family members aren't easily on hand, we can also help to shoulder the practical day-to-day responsibilities of managing someone else's affairs.

Our experienced team provide a caring, personal service to our clients tailored to their individual needs, from providing support through the process of moving into long-term residential care to managing their day-to-day expenses, and any other way we can help. We build long-standing relationships with our clients, which are valued by them as much as they are by us.

Our relationships with our clients' families are just as important. If you are concerned about a vulnerable family member, we can help. If lasting powers of attorney have not or cannot be made, we can take you through the process of applying to the Court of Protection. We can advise you about the means testing process, should long-term care be a concern, and help you to secure local authority and NHS funding where it is needed.
